New Generation Of Pilots Is Soaring To NEW HEIGHTS AND CHASING DREAMS

By Mercy Rivera

Everyone has dreams when they are young that seem too far out of their reach of reality, but for today's youth, the dream of flying high in the sky is within reach.

The Aviation Explorers is an aviation program with posts across the nation. The goal is to teach participants everything they need to know in order to become pilots and have an aviation-based career. Finally, a dream is within reach for today's thriving and creative youth.

The Aviation Explorers is an exciting program anyone between the ages of 14 and 20 years old, with a passion for aviation, can join. The programs provide lots of hands-on activities and trips whereby participants can gain lots of experience for future careers in aviation, while promoting the growth and development of the new generation.

In the fall, they have Family Fun Day, with a picnic and plane rides for parents and siblings. Every July, the members of the program can go to Air Venture, in Wisconsin, for a week of camping out at the Explorer Base Camp and volunteer a couple of hours each day. It is a fun-filled week that members come back from having gained a unique and helpful experience they will never forget.

Through the program, participants learn maintenance and ground school. Ground school includes basic aerodynamics, instruments, engine and systems, weather, navigation, charts and publications. Also addressed are radio communications, air traffic control and airspace, cross-country flight planning, airports, Federal Aviation Regulations and much more.

The program also teaches various aspects of maintenance, including wheel and tire maintenance, fabric-covered flight surfaces, interior reupholstering, stripping and painting. In addition, participants learn changing oil and filters, riveting and drilling out rivets, compression checks and servicing oleo struts. These are only some of the things learned.

The program is very thorough and committed to teaching every member the foundations of flying, as well as exposing them to other possible careers in aviation. Of course, there also is the opportunity to obtain a private pilot's license.

To take part in this amazing opportunity, here are some things potential members should know. They meet three Saturdays out of the month, from September through May, when participants will learn everything there is to know about aviation.

There are some fees, as well. The Boy Scouts of America dues are $35 per year, annual repairs assessment is $50, uniform shirts are $70, and flying time is $95 per hour of engine time. It may seem like a lot, but the experience and help it will give participants when they are ready for jobs in aviation will be well worth the investment.

If you want to help out the Aviation Explorers, look no further. The Aviation Explorers are having a fundraiser. Their goal is to raise $30,000 for a new airplane. Their current plane, a Piper Cherokee, is 50 years old and needs some repairs, so they can continue to teach and give hands-on experience to members. It's a great way if people don't want to join the program but still want to support the inspiration they are giving to the new generation.

Help keep pilot training available to our future pilots by participating in the fundraiser or donating. It costs only $25 per person for a catered Mexican dinner. Included is a wine and beer cash bar. There also will be many entertaining events, such as live auctions, 50/50 raffles, live entertainment and a silent auction.

Some of the prizes are gift cards to local restaurants, a ride-along with the Mesa Police Department helicopter, a movie basket, a spin lesson in a J3 piper cub, an ACT/SAT college prep class, a ride in a Cobra attack helicopter and more.

The live entertainment includes Jeff Senour, who is living out his pursuit of two dreams at once—a pilot by day and a rocker by night. The fundraiser will take place at the Wings of Flight hangar, located at Falcon Field Airport, on Saturday, April 13, from 5 to 9 p.m.

Attending or donating to this fundraiser will help the Aviation Explorer Post 352 grow and continue to provide top-notch instruction to our new generation of pilots. ■

If you would like to help these future pilots, please contact Stacey Kinkel at (602) 574-1475 for tickets or further questions. Help keep the new generation soaring to new heights to reach their dreams.

Free Community BBQ and Music Festival Builds Fellowship

Submitted by Judi Willis, APR

Red Mountain United Methodist Church invites the community to its free BBQ and Music Festival, an event for the whole family, on Sunday, March 24, from 11:45 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Sonoran Dogs will play in the big tent on the church campus. Formed in 2011, the musical group exploded onto the bluegrass scene, performing and headlining many festivals and concert venues in the Southwestern U.S., and touring as far away as Australia. With every show, The Sonoran Dogs play with expertise, often improvising and showcasing original songs, traditional and contemporary music, as well as an eclectic mix of Bluegrass, Folk, Americana, Celtic and Newgrass.

The Sonoran Dogs include Peter McLaughlin, guitar/vocals; Mark Miracle, mandolin/vocals; Tyler James, banjo/vocals; and Brian Davies, upright bass/vocals.

Meanwhile, in the fellowship hall, where lunch is served, a talented trio will play live country music, featuring nationally known steel guitarist Margie Mays. Instruments include double neck non-pedal steel guitar, ribbon guitar and bass guitar.

The free meal includes pulled BBQ chicken sandwiches, homemade coleslaw, BBQ beans, potato chips and dessert, with hot dogs available for the kids.

Outside, kids will have many activities to keep busy throughout the day. There will be a bounce house designated just for preschoolers, who also can enjoy the outdoor, fenced playground. Bounce houses and games with prizes will be available for older children in another area of the campus.

Kids also will enjoy the face-painting station, a petting zoo and, if they didn't fill up on BBQ, free cotton candy and popcorn. ■

Red Mountain United Methodist Church is located at 2936 N. Power Road, on the west side of Power Road, just north of McDowell Road.

EDUCATION

Students Learn Art of Transcending Tribulations By Building Resilience

By Dr. Anjum Majeed, Superintendent and Sami Majeed, JD, Chief of Schools Self Development Academy

While I am somewhat short and let's say wizened, neither stature nor age has bested me, nor have my two brain surgeries and toxic chemotherapy for breast cancer.

I stand against the wind akimbo, not despite these health ailments, but precisely because of them. I have taken my survival through these harrowing moments, not as narrowly escaping the final surrender, but as proof of an inner strength, a resolute resilience.

WHAT IS RESILIENCE AND HOW DOES IT RELATE TO BRAIN FUNCTION?

Scholars define resiliency as the capacity to cope successfully with everyday challenges, significant life events, cumulative stress and major adversity. It is precisely the response to stress that makes a person resilient. However, the stress is not merely the stressful event, but also the effect the stress has on the body.

During times of stress or adversity, every person's body goes through a fight or flight response. The heart rate increases, blood pressure rises, and stress hormones gush through the body. To deal with stress, the amygdala, the part of the brain that expresses fear responses, sends messages to the brain to release hormones, cortisol and adrenaline. These physiological responses prepare the person to respond, to do some thing that will provide relief.

This is a critical juncture because if the stress continues, serious health problems may arise. Chronic stress critically depresses the immune system. It shuts down the prefrontal cortex at the front of the brain. Without the prefrontal cortex (PFC), we lose the ability to solve problems and control our impulses. We lose attention and focus, becoming subject to the will of our vacillating emotions.

The loss of the PFC also is our most trusted soldier. Stimulating the prefrontal cortex undoes our stress response and calms the body. The body is able to undergo physiological changes, reducing high blood pressure and increased heart rate. Resilience also enhances the body's capacity to cope with adversity and risk. Doctors call this activating the parasympathetic nervous system. We call it resilience.

HOW DO WE BUILD RESILIENCE IN CHILDREN?

Children have different stresses and different genetic and predisposed abilities to cope with stress. While all children have the ability to handle small amounts of stress, when the stress becomes too much, children withdraw, becoming defiant or angry. These behaviors create undesired, long-term behavior patterns.

To build resilience, scholars have suggested a range of protective factors. There are internal protective factors, like a child's personal characteristics, temperament and openness. There also are external protective factors. The external factors include children's family, friends, school and community interactions, which can either shield the children or place stress on them. Internal and external assets serve as positive influences to build resilience.

Practicing situational awareness (or mindfulness) can help children separate the facts from their feelings. Simply breathing out longer than breathing in activates the parasympathetic nervous system, telling the brain to relax and the heart rate to slow down. They learn not to listen to their impulses or give into fears and perceived injustices. They learn to wait a few seconds, and ultimately find wiser courses of action.

External factors also contribute to the development of resilience—external factors like a positive school environment and a feeling of connectedness to the school. Schools play a significant role in developing resilience, and can provide opportunities to build resilience by recognizing the importance of developing protective factors.

Even the school-home interaction is critical to developing the sense of belonging. A comforting nexus between the various places a child spends his time helps to provide a sense of safety, a place from which the child can respond more appropriately to stress. A positive relationship between home and school promotes the development of resilience, since there is a continuous solid ground upon which a child can rely if the stress becomes too great.

For this reason, one of Self Development Academy's (SDA) core values is resilience. Schools must then be a safe environment, a place where we provide children those external factors that help nurture resilience. In this environment, we can focus on building children's self-esteem and self-efficacy, by encouraging critical thinking, problem solving and social skills.

SDA is a school that has a caring educational environment and high expectations that help develop resilience. We know that line between pushing to excel and pushing to excess. While we offer high school level courses in middle school, we also provide individualized learning programs. For instance, we adjust homework levels for specific students. What we hope is that children build trust in the adults in their lives, encouraging them to look for support during times of tribulation.

Teachers can be the supportive adults who model social skills and protect children. Further, a school, such as SDA, creates a safe environment for peer bonding and positive social interactions that encourage the development of self-efficacy.

At SDA, we believe all children can have exceptional futures. Whereas we cannot change their inherited traits or the difficulties they may face, we can give them the coping skills to triumph over tribulations they may face. We can help build resilience by creating a nurturing environment with supportive adults, positive bonding with friends, and home-school relationships that encourage the growth of resilience. ■

SDA is enrolling for the 2019-2020 school year. For information about Self Development Academy, call (480) 641-2640.

LAS SENDAS CHEF SHARES PASTA SECRETS

In celebration of National Noodle Month, Las Sendas Executive Chef Josh Nylin is sharing his homemade fresh pasta dough recipe.

"Did you know it is estimated that Italians eat more than 60 pounds of pasta per person, per year, easily beating Americans who eat about 20 pounds per person," Josh stated. "This love of pasta in Italy far exceeds the production of the country. Therefore, Italy must import most of the wheat it uses for pasta."

Today, pasta is made using mass-production methods to fill the huge worldwide demand, and while pasta is made everywhere, the product made in Italy keeps to time-tested production methods that create superior pasta.

"All pasta starts out as fresh pasta, but some is made to be eaten soft," Josh explained. "Fresh pasta can be made with slightly different ingredients than the dried variety. Many northern regions of Italy use all-purpose flour and eggs, while in Southern Italy, it usually is made from semolina and water, but it depends upon the recipe."

Homemade Pasta Dough

Yield: 4 pounds

18 egg yolks

8 whole eggs

1 kilogram (2 lbs, 3.24 ozs) all purpose flour

1 tablespoon kosher salt

Add the flour to a bowl, make a well in the center, and add the egg yolks and eggs to the well. Start beating the eggs with a fork, slowly incorporating the flour until the dough becomes a wet ball. Turn the dough out onto a floured surface and knead the dough until it comes together. Wrap and refrigerate. Roll out the pasta dough using a pasta roller.

EDUCATION

Montessori still sparks students' PASSION FOR LEARNING AFTER 25 YEARS

Article and Photos by Laurie Struna

In Suzanne Collins' Montessori classroom at Barbara Bush Elementary School, there is a quiet rhythm as engaged fourth- to sixth-graders work on self-directed lessons.

Specifically, two students play a card game they created to learn state capitals. Across the room, another child studies geology by manipulating minerals, while others learn Spanish, writing, reading and all about atoms.

Based on the work of Dr. Maria Montessori, an early 20th century Italian physician and educator, Montessori classrooms are homelike environments, filled with materials designed to keep hands-on, self-motivated learners organized in a highly structured educational environment.

Suzanne began teaching in 1999, and three years ago made the switch to teaching the Montessori Method.

"Students have individual needs, interests and strengths," Suzanne said. "I felt that I could make a greater educational impact teaching Montessori. I am always amazed at what children can accomplish when given the opportunity."

According to Suzanne, Montessori fuels students' passions, and teaches skills, including self-discipline, problem solving, collaboration, leadership, creativity and innovation, while also caring for other people and the environment.

Montessori students are empowered by self-directed learning, which inspires self-discovery of talents and strengths. A few former Montessori students who attribute their education to their professional success include Amazon founder Jeff Bezos and culinary icon Julia Child, as well as cellist and United Nations Messenger of Peace Yo-Yo Ma.

District Montessori educators are accredited by the State of Arizona and the Montessori Accreditation Council for Teacher Education. It took Suzanne two years of coursework to complete her Montessori certification. She continued her studies by participating in a nine-month practicum and yearlong case study.

"The training was intense and a lot of work, but it was so worth it," Suzanne shared.

CREATING A LEGACY

This school year, the district's Montessori program celebrates 25 years of educational excellence. The program is a popular choice for parents throughout Mesa.

"Our Montessori teachers are creating learners who feel empowered about what they know," said Dr. Dawn Foley, director of teaching and learning.

Free kindergarten through sixth grade Montessori is available at Bush, Johnson and Pomeroy elementary schools. Tuition-based Montessori preschool also is available. To learn more, go to mpsaz.org/montessori. ■

This Year May Be The Best Time To Sell Your Home

By Lorraine Ryall

KOR Properties

As we head into our peak selling season, we are still in a seller's market, but it is beginning to soften. For February, supply increased 6.8 percent, while demand decreased 14.1 percent. However, there still is 28.5 percent more demand than supply, keeping us in a seller's market.

	Feb. 2019	Feb. 2018
Supply	67.3	63.0
Demand	86.5	99.7

If you have been thinking about selling, this may be the perfect time to sell your home, while we are still in a seller's market.

HOW MUCH IS MY HOME WORTH?

When you are thinking about selling your home, the first thing you want to know is how much your home is worth. You may want to jump on Zillow or other real estate sites. This may be great to get a rough idea of your home's value, but I urge you to get a market analysis from a local experienced Realtor instead. Zillow will instantly give you a Zestimate. However, their values often are way off, as they only look at statistics, usually using a larger area from which to pull those statistics. Our neighborhoods are very different in East Mesa, and the values are skewed when the data is pulled from other neighborhoods.

Many other factors affect your home's value, which the computer cannot calculate. For example, the upgrades you have, if you have a pool, location, views, golf course lots, single-story versus two-story homes and many more. All these make a big difference in your home's value. If you do want to go online to get a quick value, you can get an accurate home estimate at InstantHomeValueAZ.com. This takes you to my website, and I personally will run the report for you. However, the only way to get the true market value of your home is to schedule an appointment for a free home valuation.

GETTING YOUR HOME ORGANIZED

Buyers want as much space as they can afford, whether it's living space or storage space. Decluttering opens your home and will make it look and feel more spacious. A well-organized home lets the buyer see the space it has to offer without trying to look past all the clutter. Go through your home room by room and try to see it for the first time through the buyer's eyes. Does the room feel open and spacious? Instead, is it cluttered with knick-knacks and cramped with all the furniture? Taking a large chair out of a small room can change the entire feel of the room and open it up. Taking all the knick-knacks off the mantel will draw the buyer's eye to the decorative stonework around the fireplace rather than to the knick-knacks on top.

Remove most of your photos. I am not a believer that all photos need to be removed. You want it to look clean and tidy, but not sterile. Having some family photos shows it is a family home with happy memories. If you have a wall with a bunch of pictures on it, take down all but a couple of them, and don't forget to patch up the holes left behind.

The kitchen—This is the best room to declutter, as it is one of the top rooms that makes the buying decision. You want to show off how much workspace there is and how much storage it has with all the cabinets. Put away any small appliances, such as coffee makers, toaster ovens and blenders, etc. Pack away any saucepans or serving dishes you haven't used in the past six months and probably won't use in the next few months.

Arrange what you have in your cabinets and drawers, so it all looks neat and organized with plenty of room. Go through your pantry and pack away any non-perishable goods you won't use in the next few months. Neatly stack what is left and turn all the labels facing out. Trust me, buyers will open cupboard doors and drawers to see inside, especially in the kitchen.

SHOULD I DO ANY UPGRADES BEFORE SELLING MY HOME?

This is one of the top questions I am asked when I meet the homeowner the first time. The answer depends on so many factors. For example, how quickly do you want to sell? Are we in a buyers' or sellers' market? Do you want a good price for your home as it is or the highest price you can get if you do some upgrades? Then, we will go over which upgrades get you the best bang for your buck where you will be able to recoup the investment from the sale. Kitchen and bathroom remodels should get you 100 percent return on your investment if they are done right. Sometimes, upgrades are not the way to go, but freshening the home with new paint, changing out some old light fixtures and staging the home can make all the difference. Having a free market analysis of your home will answer these and many more questions.

If you are thinking of selling and want to know how much your home is worth, if you should do any upgrades or if you have any questions, please contact me directly at (602) 571-6799 to set up a free no obligation consultation. You can also visit InstantHomeValueAZ.com.

The recently opened Red Mountain Executive Suites provide a modern, upscale place to work, with competitive pricing and great perks. Tenants enjoy access to shared amenities, such as boardrooms, a game room, community kitchen, furnished offices, high speed Internet and more.

"This is a great solution for individuals or growing businesses with smaller teams that want the benefits of a full office building for one all-in, affordable price without the burden of leasing an entire building," said owner Dennis Seifert.

Red Mountain Executive Suites offers flexible, fully furnished offices for teams of up to 30 employees, ranging from high-quality cubicle spaces, to individual offices.

Tenants enjoy networking opportunities and social activities, like foosball, darts and television for a great work experience that can't be recreated at home or in a smaller space.

"As someone that has previously worked from home, I know how challenging it can be to be effective without a great office environment," said Dennis. "Utilizing the amenities and space provided by executive suites has made my team and me much more efficient."

Suites average at 10 feet by 13 feet and have floor to ceiling windows, high-quality modern finishes and furniture options. Some offices even provide private entry and separate locks.

MEDICARE PLANS ARE AVAILABLE TO SPECIFICALLY HELP THOSE WITH DIABETES

Submitted by Tapestry Insurance

When you have diabetes, you have additional medical considerations.

Many people may not realize there are primary care providers who specialize in diabetic care. Having your care managed by one of these providers may be a good option for you to consider.

There are Medicare Advantage plans available in Maricopa County, which focus on maintaining and improving health for individuals with Type 1 or Type 2 diabetes. These plans focus on all aspects of the member to help identify, track, maintain and even improve outcomes for members with both types of diabetes.

Some of the plans offer a substantial price reduction for insulin. If you have Type 1 or Type 2 diabetes, you may have the opportunity to consider your health care coverage. You may be eligible for a special election period that will allow you to switch to a plan that focuses more on you and managing your diabetes.

Given the importance and complexity of this disease, taking the step to ask someone to help identify options for you is a must. Please call me to arrange an appointment. I can help you determine if a specialized Advantage plan might be the right choice for you.

HEALTH

Valuable information serves as guide TO FOOT HEALTH FOR ATHLETIC KIDS

By Dr. Aprajita Nakra, DPM

With millions of American children participating in warm weather sports this year, from softball to soccer, and swimming to cycling, they will need their feet to be pain-free if they're going to play their best and prevent injuries.

"Sports play a significant role in the lives of millions of young athletes," said Dr. Aprajita Nakra, DPM, a foot and ankle specialist at Advanced Ankle and Foot at Red Mountain Medical Plaza. "Parents need to be aware that sports which require a substantial amount of running, turning and contact can translate to injuries. Protecting children's feet from injuries, and bringing them to a podiatrist when problems occur, can help keep kids in the game and make the sport more enjoyable."

Dr. Nakra offers some tips for helping protect children's feet while playing warm-weather sports:

- Protective taping of the ankles is often necessary to help prevent sprains or fractures.
- Buying a shoe designed for the specific sport your child plays not only improves your child's performance in the sport, but also can help protect the young athlete from serious foot and ankle injuries.
- Without the right sock, even the best athletic shoe won't score points—on the field or off. Athletic socks should consist of a natural/synthetic blend, which is best at wicking away moisture and minimizing foot odor. Socks should not have large seams that might cause blisters or irritation.

Commonly played warm-weather sports and the risks associated with them include:

Basketball—Children playing basketball may be at risk for ankle sprains, tendinitis and plantar fasciitis (inflammation of the thick band of tissue on the sole of the foot). To minimize the risk of foot injury, choose a shoe with a thick, stiff sole, high ankle support and shock absorption.

Tennis—The rapid, repetitive lateral movements and shifting of weight required of tennis players can lead to injuries, such as ankle sprains, plantar fasciitis, as well as corns or calluses. Tennis players will do best with a flexible-soled shoe that supports both sides of the foot.

Running—Movements required of runners include leg extension and hitting the balls of the feet with a great deal of force. Running can lead to shin splints, heel pain and blisters. A good running shoe should offer good support and shock absorption. In some cases, custom orthotics may be necessary to provide additional support and control of foot motion.

Soccer—The running, jumping and lateral movements required of soccer players can lead to many foot injuries, with heel pain and shin splints being among the most common. Soccer shoes should provide multiple cleats in the heel area and enough room for thick soccer socks.

"Sports-related foot and ankle injuries are on the rise as more children participate actively in sports," Dr. Nakra said. "Parents need to be vigilant to ensure children's feet remain healthy and safe. And remember—lack of complaint by a child is not a reliable sign everything is fine. The bones of growing feet are so flexible that they can be twisted and distorted without the child being aware of it."

Ensuring your child's feet stay healthy could go a long way. Your young athlete could one day be the next LeBron James or Brandi Chastain. If your child participates in strenuous sports, monitor foot health closely. If you suspect a problem, take your child to a podiatrist for evaluation and treatment. ■

Dr. Aprajita Nakra, DPM, is a foot and ankle surgeon at Advanced Ankle and Foot in Mesa, Gilbert and Casa Grande. To make an appointment, call (480) 962-4281, or visit advancedanklefoot.com.

RED MOUNTAIN RANCH OWNERS ASSOCIATION

Take Time to Connect With the People in Your Neighborhood

Submitted by Red Mountain Ranch Owners Association Board of Directors

Today, that great little jingle from Sesame Street, “They’re the people that you meet when you’re walking down the street. They’re the people that you meet each day,” is not relatable to some people.

In our hurried society, with automatic garage doors, cinder block walls and interactive technology, we are more detached from our neighbors than ever before.

How can we cultivate connectedness in our communities? Why is it important? Community connectedness fosters safety, security and social well-being. Neighbors can help and support one another by sharing valuable information or providing a helping hand.

A quick resource, neighbors know a trustworthy babysitter, where to get free moving boxes, the best nearby Italian food, and give the heads up that there’s a pack of javelinas, coyotes or a bear walking down the street. What simple and tangible steps can you take to form a network with your neighbors?

LEARN NAMES

Even if you’ve been greeting one another for years with a wave or a hi, take a minute to introduce yourselves. Make a list of neighbors and keep it in your cell phone. Give yourself clues to remember who is who (guy with the white truck and lady who walks the little black dog). Now that you have learned a few names, make them stick. Create an opportunity to have a conversation—even a simple one. “Hi, John. I noticed the wind last night broke that branch, and it’s hanging over your truck.”

CREATE SYNERGISM

Keep up the name game, and you’ll find that others will reciprocate. If you forget a name, don’t worry about it. Ask again. “Oh, shoot. Remind me of your name.” This is much better than falling back on “Hey, bud.”

GET OUT

Whether walking your hood for exercise or just to the mailbox, spending time where you can interact with others will give you the opportunity to meet and learn about your neighbors. Again, create an opportunity to address the people you encounter.

JOIN IN

Does your neighborhood or homeowners association have a social club, committees, fitness center, community clubhouse or school? Get involved. Start with joining the social networking site Nextdoor.com, whose email platform leverages the fact neighbors want to know and share with those living closest to them.

START SOMETHING

In Red Mountain Ranch, a small group of residents formed Advance Red Mountain Ranch to unify the community, enrich the local lifestyle and enhance amenities that appeal to and benefit the neighborhood. This group has organized events for gathering and socializing, including community days, chili cook-off and dinner in the park. If you have a homeowners association, country club or other neighborhood stakeholders, urge them to join together to leverage resources for sprouting a consistent rhythm of community events and opportunities for togetherness.

Merriam-Webster defines community this way: an interacting population of various kinds of individuals in a common location; a feeling of fellowship with others as a result of sharing common attitudes, interests and goals.

Wouldn’t it be nice to have the I’m home feeling sooner than when you pull into your driveway? Enrich your life. Commit to interacting with one another in even the smallest ways. ■

Physical Therapy Can Help Demystify Pelvic Floor Dysfunction

By Sharin Lane, DPT
Spooner Physical Therapy,
North Mesa

Pelvic floor dysfunction (PFD) can disguise itself in many different ways. If you suffer from hip, groin, low back or pelvic pain, you may be dealing with pelvic floor dysfunction. PFD is a canopy term for a multitude of disorders that occur when the muscles, ligaments and soft tissues of the pelvis are impaired. This usually is due to an inability to properly control the muscles of the pelvic floor or a malalignment of the joints or structures in and around the pelvis.

The pelvic floor muscles act as a sling to hold and support the internal organs of the pelvis. Symptoms associated with PFD include pain or pressure in and around the pelvis, incontinence (bladder or bowel), dyspareunia and prolapse. PFD is most commonly caused by childbirth, pregnancy, increased intra-abdominal pressure, respiratory disorders, hypermobility, nerve damage, trauma and aging.

If you believe you have PFD, it is important to seek a professional opinion, as self-diagnosis is not recommended due to risk of misdiagnosis or infection. Examination of the pelvic structures includes laparoscopy, hysteroscopy or ultrasound.

To diagnose PFD, an internal exam usually is completed. An external exam may be done via electrodes to the musculature when available, but is less desirable due to being less accurate. To help diagnose PFD, a gynecologist, urologist, obstetrician, physical therapists or chiropractor may complete an internal examination. Treatment for PFD may include biofeedback, medications, strengthening, stretching, manual therapy, surgery and more.

Severity of the condition often will dictate the appropriate form of intervention. In less severe cases, physical therapy often is recommended to avoid invasive procedures. Physical therapy helps to regain control of the pelvic floor muscles, address malalignment, release tight muscles and provide education for self-management.

Pelvic floor physical therapists are specially trained to diagnose and treat PFD conservatively. Physical therapy treatment includes biofeedback, kegel exercises, strengthening, stretching, manual therapy, bladder/bowel retraining and more. The goal of physical therapy is to help individuals dealing with PFD return to their desired activities without pain, no longer worry about leaks, control intra-abdominal pressure and continue family planning. ■

KNOW BEFORE YOU THROW

By Jon Englund
Rather than a simple penny for your thoughts, how about millions of dollars?

Jon Englund and Donna Luger

A few years ago, an incredibly rare penny from a private collection sold at auction for the jaw-dropping figure of $1.7 million. The penny was from 1943, when that denomination was supposed to be minted from zinc-coated steel due to the need to reserve strategic copper for the World War II effort.

It's estimated that as few as 17 to 22 non-steel coins were released at that time. Apparently, some bronze planchets (the plain metal disk that is stamped as a coin) were caught in the trap doors of the tote bins used to feed the Mint's coin presses. The error was not realized until after the coins were circulated, making it the rarest U.S. error coin in existence.

The coin's owner, Don Lutes Jr., of Pittsfield, Mass., found the penny in 1947, at the age of 16. The penny was in the change given to him when he paid for his high school cafeteria lunch. Being a budding coin collector, he quickly realized he had obtained something unique. Despite denials from the U.S. Mint that any 1943 bronze pennies existed, there was a rumor that Henry Ford had made an offer to exchange a new car for a bronze penny if anyone found one. That rumor turned out to be false, so Don kept the penny locked up until last year when his health declined.

Don wanted to sell the coin and donate the proceeds to the local public library where he volunteered his time. Sadly, Don passed away last September, at the age of 87. He would have loved seeing the impact that chance event in 1947 had on the world of coin collecting.

So what's in your pocket? An old penny, perhaps? Coin images can be viewed at pcgs.com/news/Pcgs-certified-1943-d-Bronze-Cent-Sold-For-17-Million. ■

REAL ESTATE

Take A Look Ahead At This Year's Housing Market

By John Karadsheh

Normally, we write our New Year's real estate predictions in mid-December to be published in January, but in mid-December we were looking at the craziness of the stock market, the decline in housing sales, and wondering where things were headed next.

John Karadsheh

As we sat down to write this piece in early January, the government shutdown had no end in sight and we paused again. As we write this in mid-February, things finally seem to be normalizing again, and we have a better feel for where things are headed.

THE BOOM AND THE PAUSE

We have to start by acknowledging that the first three quarters of 2018 were pretty darn impressive and returned us to the pre-recession glory days of real estate—low inventory, multiple offers, robust prices and low interest rates. Consequently, in 2018, home values increased by more than 8.5 percent. Now, looking back, the data shows that values peaked in June when the median sales price (as tracked by the Arizona Regional Multiple Listing Service) reached a new all-time high of $268,000 (the previous record was set in June 2006 at $264,800).

By early October, the stock market started to get jittery and that, coupled with the intensity of the midterm elections and talks of a tariff war, led to a great pause. Quite suddenly, our lively market went eerily quiet despite the fact that locally, our housing inventory was low, unemployment rates were low, and Maricopa County continued to be one of the fastest growing counties in the United States.

While the volume of national home sales began to slump, prices stayed level (or rather they stopped increasing). By the end of 2018, we saw the number of buyers decline and those buyers who were in the market started coming in with lower offers. Sellers, by contrast, were convinced their homes were worth a certain price and dug in. Often, the gap between the seller's minimum and the buyer's maximum was not insurmountable, but the psychological divide was vast.

2019 PREDICTIONS
THE STANDOFF WILL CONTINUE

The standoff between buyers and sellers likely will continue until either buyers feel more comfortable spending their money or sellers adjust their prices to reach more buyers. It is hard to tell who will blink first—but right now, I would say it is 60 percent to 40 percent, with sellers forced to concede a bit more, simply to get their properties sold. During the spring busy season, sellers may get back some of their leverage for a period of time in certain segments of the market.

RATES AND FINANCING

On the plus side, mortgage interest rates currently are at the lowest point they have been since March of 2018, but it is expected they will creep back up as we move through 2019. The drop in rates definitely has stimulated some activity, and there has been a flurry of buyers on and off since the second week of January. Down payment assistance continues to be available, along with more creative lending options for buyers in all segments of the market.

As we frequently note, the Greater Phoenix Area has diversified its economy since the recession, and is experiencing the fruits of years of enthusiastic economic development. Our local economy is no longer exclusively tied to construction, and we are seeing a broad range of companies expand locally or relocate to the Valley. In Mesa, Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport, the Elliot Tech Corridor and the Falcon Field District all are booming with countless new projects.

Arizona economist Lee McPheters predicts Arizona will add 71,000 jobs in 2019 and continue to rank among the top five states for job growth in manufacturing, construction and professional and technical services. Furthermore, it is expected Arizona will add another 100,000 residents in 2019. While the economy and housing market will soften nationally in 2019, this time, Arizona's strong, smart growth will provide us with a layer of protection.

THE NUTSHELL

On the whole, we predict that 2019 will see a lower volume of home sales, with a 0 percent to 2 percent valuation increase (completely dependent on where you live and what kind of home you are selling). Low maintenance, turnkey homes, especially those suited for retiring baby boomers, will continue to fare well. We expect to see the normal seasonal spurt this spring followed by a slowing on the back half of the year. If you are buying (especially if you are paying cash), there will be deals to find if you look hard enough—but expect those deals to come with some deferred maintenance. The remodeled and upgraded properties will, as always, get top dollar.

All in all, we really have so much to be grateful for in the Valley. Housing values have increased year over year, investors have made money, most homeowners are no longer under water, foreclosures mostly have gone away, homeowners have the equity to remodel, and the Valley economy truly is thriving. The real estate market is just becoming balanced again, and that stability truly will support the longevity of our local economy. ■

Lent Is A Time For Growth and Education In Christian Faith

By Associate Pastor Nick Duerr

Wednesday, March 6, is Ash Wednesday, which marks the beginning of Lent, a season that ends on Easter Sunday.

For many of us, Lent conjures up images in our minds of people giving up things, most often chocolate, soda or some other unhealthy food. Sometimes, however, people choose to give up something else, such as social media or dining out. For anyone who has lived in a heavily Roman Catholic community, Lent might bring to mind images of fish fries on Friday evenings.

But Lent is much more than odd eating habits. Lent is a season of the church year that has traditionally been set aside for growth and education in the Christian faith. A significant portion of that growth and education is focusing intently on the work Jesus did, culminating in His death and resurrection, which will be celebrated during Holy Week in April. There are many other topics into which we as the church can dive.

This year, at Hosanna Lutheran Church, we will discuss the parts of the worship service, as well as how those lead us to remember Jesus and the work He did to save us. We will be diving in deeply to discuss things, such as baptism, prayer and the Ecumenical creeds of the church.

Please join us for our Lenten worship, and in our studies of these topics. We will be meeting at Hosanna every Wednesday in March and up through Holy Week.

Worship times are 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. We will provide a lunch immediately following the early service, and a dinner beginning at 5:30 p.m., just before the evening service. We would love to have you come and join us. ■

DON'T BECOME A VICTIM OF SCAMMERS

By Paul Toepel, CPA
People impersonating IRS officials have been contacting many of our clients.

Usually, this is over the telephone, but sometimes in person. The best way to protect yourself against these scams is to understand how and when the IRS contacts taxpayers.

The IRS initiates most contacts through regular mail delivered by the U.S. Postal Service.

There are some special circumstances in which the IRS will call or come to your home. These can include an overdue tax bill, collect on employment taxes, or as part of an ongoing audit. But... even then, a taxpayer generally will receive several written notices first from the IRS, which are delivered by mail.

THE IRS DOES NOT:

- Call and demand immediate payment using a specific payment method, like a credit card or wire transfer.
- Demand payment of taxes without giving you the opportunity to question the amount they say you owe.
- Threaten you with police action or other law enforcement to have you arrested for not paying.

Scam artists trick their victims with commonly used threats like these. But scams can take many shapes and forms. The IRS provides a comprehensive listing of tax scams at Tax Scams/Consumer Alerts.

Here is an example from that site:
IRS-IMPERSONATION TELEPHONE SCAMS

A sophisticated phone scam targeting taxpayers, including recent immigrants, has been making the rounds throughout the country. Callers claim to be IRS employees, using fake names and bogus IRS identification badge numbers. They may know a lot about their targets, and they usually alter the caller ID to make it look like the IRS is calling.

Victims are told they owe money to the IRS and it must be paid promptly through a gift card or wire transfer. Victims may be threatened with arrest, deportation or suspension of a business or driver's license. In many cases, the caller becomes hostile and insulting. Victims may be told they have a refund due to try to trick them into sharing private information. If the phone isn't answered, the scammers often leave an urgent callback request.

AVOID EMAIL, PHISHING AND MALWARE SCHEMES

Scammers send emails, which trick taxpayers into thinking the messages are official communications from the IRS or others in the tax industry. As part of phishing schemes, scammers sometimes ask taxpayers about a wide-range of topics, such as refunds, filing status, confirming personal information, ordering transcripts and verifying personal identification numbers.

The IRS does not use email, text messages or social media to discuss tax debts or refunds with taxpayers. Additional information about tax scams is available on IRS social media sites like YouTube and Tumblr.

Paul Toepel is a CPA who has lived in Las Sendas for more than 17 years. His firm, Toepel Company PC, is a full-service, Mesa-based CPA firm offering a variety of services for more than 30 years.

These services include tax preparation and representation, accounting, fraud prevention and QuickBooks setup and support. Their mission is, "To provide exceptional service, knowledge and experience, all while making you and your business successful." ■

Area Business Owners Keep An Eye On Things FOR ABSENTEE HOMEOWNERS

By Faith Lubber
Red Mountain TLC Home Watch has earned accreditation from the National Home Watch Association (NHWA).

The NHWA was formed in 2009 in order to establish and maintain the highest industry standards for Home Watch and absentee homeowner services throughout the United States and Canada (nationalhomewatchassociation.org). Home Watch is a service that keeps an eye on things at your vacation or primary home while you are not in residence.

Through research and time spent living in Mountain Bridge, owners Kim Roberts and Bo Garcia realized that a Home Watch business was needed to keep their neighbors' property protected. As Kim and Bo began their due diligence to start their business, they realized that several of the communities in Mesa and surrounding areas of Tempe, Chandler, Apache Junction and Gilbert had many second homes for winter visitors.

Kim and Bo have lived in Arizona for more than 13 years and have lived in the communities of Queen Creek, Gilbert, and Mesa. They previously resided in California.

Kim has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice/counseling from Cal State Northridge University, and has worked for 17 years in law enforcement. She has assisted many juveniles in getting back on the right path within society as productive individuals. For 15 years, Kim also traveled back and forth on a weekly basis, from Phoenix to Los Angeles, for work. She also has been a Realtor in the State of Arizona for the past 10 years. Kim knows the importance of investing in a home and taking pride of ownership by maintaining it.

Bo has extensive experience in electricity, maintenance and handyman services, working in public works for the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community. He is passionate about and takes great pride in his trade. He is meticulous in doing the job right. Bo has experience in customer service and video surveillance. In his spare time, he plays the stand-up bass and has taken interest in brewing his own beer.

Both Kim and Bo are empty nesters, and enjoy the outdoor life and going to the lake. They also appreciate Latin salsa and smooth jazz music. Together, they take pride in their integrity and loyalty. Both are Spanish speakers. They enjoy meeting new people. ■

Take Advantage of Tax Diversification

Submitted by Brent D. Hoskinson and Linda Drake

As an investor, you will have access to accounts that are taxed differently from one another. And it's possible you could benefit from tax diversification by owning accounts in these three categories:

Tax-deferred – Tax-deferred accounts include the traditional IRA and a 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan. When you invest in tax-deferred vehicles, your money can grow faster than if it were placed in an account on which you paid taxes every year. You also may get a tax deduction for contributions you make today. When you start taking withdrawals from these tax-deferred accounts, typically during retirement, the money is usually taxed at your ordinary income tax rate.

Taxable – Taxable investments are those held in a standard brokerage account, outside your IRA or 401(k). While you can put virtually all types of investments into a taxable account, you may want to focus on those considered to be most tax-efficient. So, you could include individual stocks that you plan to hold, rather than actively trade, because you will not get taxed on the capital gains until you sell. You also might consider mutual funds that do little trading and generate fewer capital gain distributions. This is important not only in terms of controlling taxes, but also because the taxes on these distributions can reduce your investments' real rate of return.

Tax-free – When you invest in a Roth IRA/Roth 401(k), you don't get an immediate tax deduction, but your earnings, as well as your withdrawals, are tax-free, provided you do not start taking withdrawals until you're 59 1/2 and you have had your account at least five years. (However, income restrictions do apply to Roth IRAs.)

So, given the difference in how taxes are treated in these accounts, how can you choose where to put your money? For example, when would you contribute to a Roth IRA or Roth 401(k), rather than a traditional, tax-deferred IRA or 401(k)? If you are in a high tax rate now and expect it to be lower in retirement, a traditional IRA may make more sense, as you potentially get a sizable benefit from the tax deduction. But if you are in a lower tax rate now, you have most of your retirement investments in tax-deferred accounts, and/or you can afford to forego the immediate tax deduction, you might find that the Roth IRA/Roth 401(k), with its tax-free withdrawals and earnings, ultimately will make more sense for you. But since no one can predict where tax rates will go in the future, having money in different types of accounts – i.e., tax diversification – can be beneficial.

If you only focus on traditional, tax-deferred accounts, you could end up with larger tax bills than you anticipated when you retire and start tapping into these accounts, particularly when you must start taking withdrawals – called "required minimum distributions" – when you reach 70 1/2. By having money in accounts with different tax treatments, you may have more flexibility in structuring your withdrawals during retirement, based on your year-to-year tax situation.

There's no formula for achieving an ideal tax diversification. You'll want to consider your own needs and circumstances in choosing the right mix of taxable, tax-deferred and tax-free accounts. Ultimately, taxes should not drive all your investment decisions – but they should not be ignored, either. ■

TERM LIFE INSURANCE Could be Right for Your Family

Submitted by Matt Watson, State Farm Agent

Is term life insurance right for your family?

Starting a family? Caring for aging parents? If you have dependents counting on your income, life insurance is more a necessity than a luxury. For families and other people seeking a particular period of coverage, a term life insurance policy provides financial security without requiring a lifetime of premiums.

Here's how it works:

COVERAGE AND BENEFIT OF TERM LIFE INSURANCE

A term life insurance policy provides coverage for a specific period of time, or term. You can choose a policy for the stated term and pay scheduled premiums to the insurer during that time. If the unthinkable happens, and you should pass away while the policy is in force, your beneficiary receives the stated value of the death benefit.

LENGTH OF TERM LIFE INSURANCE

With term policies, you can choose between 10, 20, or 30 years of level premium payments. At the end of the level payment period, the policy is guaranteed renewable to age 95. Although the policy can last until age 95, the premiums will increase significantly every policy anniversary and will likely become unaffordable.

Most State Farm® term policies can be converted without evidence of insurability. This means that during the level term period, and before age 75, you are able to convert regardless of your health to a permanent policy, such as whole life or universal life. Permanent policies are designed to provide coverage for the entire lifetime of the insured person, not just a stated term. New premiums and other conditions may apply.

COSTS OF TERM LIFE INSURANCE

Term life premiums are determined by a number of factors, including age, gender, tobacco use, and health. For example, it will typically cost less to insure a 30-year-old nonsmoker in good health than it will to provide the same policy to a 45-year-old tobacco user.

ADDITIONAL THOUGHTS ON TERM LIFE INSURANCE

Unlike permanent life policies, term life policies do not provide cash value. The premiums paid to the insurer are simply the nonrefundable price of coverage for the stated term.

Term life is a sound insurance option for people seeking to provide for their dependents for a set period of time. ■

For more information about whether term life is right for you, be sure to discuss your needs with Matt Watson, State Farm agent.

I'm here for what matters.

Many Details Are Associated with Long-Term Care Insurance

Submitted by Home Care Assistance

If you are trying to figure out how to use your mom or dad's long-term care insurance (LTCI), or you are ready to start using the long-term care insurance in which you've been investing, paying for home care can be easier, but it also can be confusing to know where to start.

If you or your parent chose a plan years ago, it can be difficult to remember what exactly the benefits were or how to go about activating them. If your parent no longer has the cognitive ability to remember the plan, it's even harder. However, you don't have to go about this alone.

Before making a big decision, make sure you have all the relevant information at your fingertips. We recommend speaking to a Home Care Assistance care manager to understand your situation in more detail. A care manager can call the insurance company with you during an in-home assessment to understand your loved one's policy and expected benefits. This professional also is familiar with advising you on the process, complying with any expiration period requirements, and understanding whether your care needs are sufficient to trigger your benefit.

Our care managers are experts in the administrative setup and ongoing paperwork required to make sure you receive your benefit. This will reduce the likelihood you experience delayed or declined reimbursement and means less hassle for you. The Mesa/Gilbert office phone number is (480) 699-4899.

WHAT IS LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE, AND WHAT DOES IT COVER?

Long-term care policies vary from plan to plan, but overall, they offset some costs of future care. For example, long-term care insurance comes into play when you have an illness, disability or impairment that interferes with daily functioning. Most policies require that you meet two of these criteria:

- The inability to perform two or three specific activities of daily living. These include bathing, dressing, eating, toileting and transferring from the bed or a chair.
- Cognitive impairment. Most policies cover stroke, dementia and Parkinson's disease. Policies may exclude other types of mental incapacity.

- Medical necessity, or certification by a doctor that long-term care is necessary.

HOW MUCH ARE THE BENEFITS WORTH?

Traditional LTCI policies are one to five years. Short-term LTCI policies (less common) are around 90 days. Depending on the policy, you can be reimbursed for nonmedical in-home care, adult day care, the monthly fees of assisted living or the daily rate for a nursing home.

Benefits usually are expressed in daily caps for years of duration. For example, a typical benefit is a $200 daily cap for four years. The benefit almost always kicks in after an expiration period of paying out-of-pocket (30 to 90 days, usually 90 days).

The policies are worth the daily cap for the duration of the benefit. Typical daily caps are $100 to $300, and typical durations are one to four years, depending on the coverage selected. Daily caps can vary depending on whether they are used for home care, assisted living or nursing care.

DOESN'T MEDICARE PAY FOR THESE EXPENSES?

Medicare does not pay for home care, assisted living or nursing home care. Medicare will only pay for short-term stays in rehab or medical home health. Long-term care insurance will not pay for services already provided by Medicare.

However, you may be receiving benefits through Medicare, such as short-term home health care from a nurse. In that situation, long-term care insurance still will pay for home health care services if you meet the criteria.

WHAT ARE THE DIFFERENT TYPES OF LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE?

There are many types of long-term care policies. Most traditional policies are similar but will have great variability in coverage. Questions to ask your insurance broker (and find the supporting print in the legal document):

- Waiting period. Is the waiting period of 60 to 90 days cumulative over time?
- What are the lengths of time or dollar amount limits?
- Do the benefits increase with the cost of inflation?
- Does the policy cover a portion of nursing home care, or does it cover care in the home and assisted living?
- Do premium rates increase every year?
- Are premiums waived during the time you are receiving benefits?

WHAT IF I DON'T EVER NEED THE CARE BENEFIT?

You don't get your money back if you don't use long-term care benefits, with most policies.

However, a newer whole life/LTCI is a hybrid policy you can draw upon for long-term care.

These policies return money to heirs even if you end up not needing long-term care. They are more expensive than traditional policies. ■

Amanda Butas, our Mesa client care manager, is happy to discuss how your policy might be used for home care. Call (480) 699-4899, or visit our office at 2031 N. Power Road, Suite 103, next to Bed Bath and Beyond.
